

Infor10 Workspace

Simplify your work day.

There's no substitute for having the right information at your fingertips. Every time you have to "swivel" between business applications to gather information for making decisions, your work day gets slower and less productive. Today you expect user-friendly online experiences when you shop or use social media; why can't you expect the same intuitive usability from your business applications? Now you can—Infor10™ Workspace delivers a consumer-grade user experience that unifies business software so that you can always have all the information you need, where and when you need it.

Get a fresh new view of business information.

Thousands of customers trust Infor for industry-specific business software that helps them stay competitive. We've focused our decades of business experience on delivering the user experience you need to succeed in today's volatile, high-speed business environment. That's why we built Infor10 Workspace to serve as the user interface and unifying fabric of our most popular products—it brings a great look and feel and exceptional usability to some of the most powerful business software available, so that you get solutions that give you information quickly and add value permanently.

See better information sooner.

You have information hitting you from all angles, every day. To follow up on any of that information, you have to visit dozens of places to find what you need, and log on to every one of them individually. Then you have to guess your way through a maze of software to do something about it.

*Get all the information you need,
where and when you need it with Infor10 Workspace.*

Infor10 Workspace uses in-context business intelligence in the user experience so that you automatically see the relevant information you need to see when you need to see it. You'll be getting the most up-to-date, accurate, and relevant information possible to make not just quicker decisions, but better decisions.
